

PHOTO KEY

Bénin01. The upstairs of a traditional Tata-Somba home in Bénin, West-Africa. Photo credit: Mike Tien

Bénin02. Traditional Tata-Somba home in Bénin, West-Africa. Photo credit: Mike Tien

Bénin03. Traditional Tata-Somba home being build in Bénin, West-Africa. Photo credit: Mike Tien

Costa Rica01. Documentary subject Derek Marsden being interviewed on location in Costa Rica by Director Dave Rheume. Photo credit: Jocelyn Rheume

Costa Rica02. Derek Marsden in Costa Rica with Armando, a village elder who teaches him how to build a traditional Bri Bri home using bamboo and vine. Photo credit: Jocelyn Rheume

Derek Marsden. Headshot of Derek Marsden on location in Costa Rica. Photo credit: Mike Tien

Namibia01. Traditional home of the Himba people in Namibia, South-Africa; a simple cone-shaped dwelling made out of dung, sand and saplings. Photo credit: Mike Tien

Namibia02. Traditional home of the Himba people in Namibia, South-Africa; a simple cone-shaped dwelling made out of dung, sand and saplings. Photo credit: Mike Tien

Peru01. The beautiful landscape of Lake Titicaca, Peru where everything around is made of reeds, including the islands! Photo credit: Mike Tien

Peru02. One of the many islands made of reeds in Lake Titicaca, Peru. Photo credit: Mike Tien

Peru03. Traditional home in Lake Titicaca, Peru, made from harvesting the reeds. Photo credit: Mike Tien

Peru04. Derek Marsden in Lake Titicaca, Peru posing with the Uros people and his host family. Photo credit: Mike Tien